Cyprus Court Gives Death Penalty to 2 In Killing of Editor

NICOSIA, April 4 (AP)—A Ni-osia court today sentenced two The two then held II Arab offi-Palestinians to death by hanging after finding them guilty of oremeditated murder in the assasination of a prominent Egyptian newspaper editor.

The execution of Samir Mohammed Qatar, 28, and Zayed Hussein Ahmed Alali, 26, was set for June 1. Their defense lawyer, Lescos Clerides, said that be would appeal the verdict and the fixing of the execution date.

Conviction of premeditated murder on Cyprus carries a man-datory death penalty. But the manded that the captured terrormurder on Cyprus carries a manpresident has in the past commuted death sentences to life imprisonment and the defense argued that since nohody had been executed on Cyprus for 10 years "the death sentence should be considered de facto abolished."

Shipload of U.S. Wheat Is Heading for Vietnam

HOUSTON, April 4 (UPI)-The Antiochia set sail vesterday with a $2-million cargo of wheat donated by U.S. larmers for the hungry citizens of Vietnaui.

The Antiochia will be the first U.S. slup to enter that country's waters since the end of the Vietnam War.

The cargo of 10,000 metric tons was expected to arrive the first week of next month, near the third anniversary of the fall of A spokesman for the sponsoring National Council of Churches' Church World Service Division said that the ship was loaded during the weekend and began moving down the 50-mile Houston Ship Channel at about 10 p.m. Sunday.

Last month, in a special public prayer meeting attended by religious and political leaders, the wheat was symbolically blessed by an interfaith group.

At that time, the Rev. William Sloane Coflin jr. of the Riverside Church in New York said it was time for reconciliation. "I hope this shipment does more for our souls than it does for the stomachs of the Vietnamese," Mr. Coffin said, "Reconciliation starts at home with ourselves." The project was undertaken by the CWS, the international development and relief arm of the National Council of Churches, and hy CROP, an anti-hunger organization, IU.S. government policy currently forbids any transactions with Vietnam, including humanitarian aid or relief. In this instance, the government granted a one-time only license to export the wheat but without the usual federal reimbursement for humanitarian relief shipping costs.

Paul McCleary, executive director of the CWS, said that a group of six CWS-sponsored individuals would be allowed to visit Vietnam and see that the wheat reached the people.

The bulk of the wheat was donated by financially hardpressed Midwestern farmers.

Vietnam produced 1.2 million tons less of grain this year than it needed to feed its people.

Red Sea Games Assailed NAIROBI, April 4 (AP)-

Ethiopia's Marxist-military government has strongly criticized the reported decision by Western powers to hold naval exercises in the Red Sea, Ethiopia's state-controlled radio said today. It said a spokesman for Ethiopia's Ministry of Information and National Guidance yesterday called the action "provocative and intimidating" and designed to undermine the fragile peace between Ethiopia and Somalia in the Horn of Africa. "This unprecedented show of force in this part of the world, at this particular time, is not accidental," the Ethiopian radio quoted the spokesman as saying. The decision by the three NATO powers to stage naval exercises on such a massive scale is not only to imtimidate Ethiopia, hut to improve the morale of the Mogadishu regime.

The criticism by Ethiopia was in response to a Tass dispatch that quoted British media reports that U.S. British and French naval vessels were on their way to the Red Sea for maneuvers off the Ethiopian coast.

There is, nonetheless, a constant flow of visitors along rue Lauriston, and the "Kontinent" offices and Mr. Maximov's apartment oearby are regularly filled with gossipy visitors relating new and old rumors from Moscow.

Uncensored Manuscripts

Mr. Maximov is overwhelmed with manuscripts from emigres and from writers in the Sovjet Unioo who want their work published in uncensored form. It makes it difficult for him to keep up with his own writing.

"Look at this," he said to a recent visitor. "This arrived in just ooe day and it could fill half of the oext issue."

Among the material was a re-port that Russian Pentecostalists had typed on a woman's scarf to get it past the Soviet customs officers. There was also an article from Alexander Solzhenitsyn, the exiled writer who oow lives in Vermont

Now a new generation of talented writers seems to be developing. Their manuscripts are just beginning to filter through to the West. Coincidentally, there is a new crackdown on dissident writers.

In Paris, the underground manuscripts must compete with the work of the emigres for space in "Kontinent," which is supported by the West German publishing combine headed by Axel Springer.

Successful Publication

"Kontinent" is by far the most successful of the emigre publica-tions, with editions in Russian and eight other languages. But there are three other such publications struggling to survive, in-cluding the weekly newspaper "Messager," which was founded more than 30 years ago.

"Any emigre publication that exceeds 3,000 circulation is a best-seller," Mr. Maximov said. "We are oow printing 4,500 copies in Russian."

"Kontinent" is small enough to be tucked into a handbag or pocket and carried into the Soviet Union. Mr. Maximov thinks that about 1,500 copies of each issue make it back to the homeland.

More than 7,000 third-wave emigres have been registered in Paris, about the same number as in the first wave but far fewer than the second wave, which included about 175,000 Russians. The community is divided into political and artistic factions and writers.

Mr. Solzhenitsyn, for example, thinks that "Kontinent" has taken too liberal a line. While other emigres who call themselves Democratic Socialists believe that the magazine is too conservative. The emigre community also has some who have had a difficult time adjusting to the Western world, which seems disorderly to individuals raised in the disciplined Soviet Union. But despite its divisions, the community rallies around cultural figures like Mstislav Rostropovich who have been attacked by Moscow.

Mr. Rostropovich, a cellist and cooductor of the National Symphony Orchestra of Washington; D.C., was at his home in Paris when the Kremlin announced rerivalries that argue and conspire cently that his Soviet citizenship against each other, as Russian inhad been revoked. Most emigres lost their citizen-

How much is progress worth to us? Are we not paying too high s prics for many of the achievsments of civilization in terms of environmental pollution? Questions like these are a challenge to research. It is vital that ws should develop technologies which have a minimum impact on the environment. Because tomorrow, we shall still need clean water and clean air. For an environment in which we can feel at eass and which supplies us with wholesome food and adequate raw materisls.

Bayer - research for a clean environment

Bayer products - and today there are more than 6,000 of them are rated highly all over the world. We have a continuous programme of research that carefully investigates the sifects of our products on the environment. This has led to the development of new technologies to prevent and eliminate damage to the environment. We make these technologies available to our partners along with the technical know-how they need to use our products. Examples are:

- Analysis equipment developed by Bsyer can detect even trace quantities of harmful substances in ths air and in water, thus permitting environmental protection precisely where it is needed.

 In "high biology" a method of wsste wster purification is offered by which energy is saved and odours diminished.

 By the Bayer double-contact process the sulphur dioxide content in the waste sir from sulphuric acid plants is reduced by 90% compared with conventional plants.

- Bayer ion exchange resins can be used for rehabilitating soils contaminated with heavy metals and for the purification of mercury-containing waste water.

that controversy is causing delay and that delay creates problems. Yet, despite all this fretting, it seems likely that the Cortes will approve a constitution in the next few months and submit it to a national referendum. The government's target date is still June.

There is little doubt that Spain oeeds a new constitution. The government is still operating under the "fundamental Laws" ofthe late dictator Francisco Franco. Mr. Suarez, for example, was appointed Premier by the King. not elected by the Cortes.

Committee of Seven

Soon after the parliamentary elections of last June 15, the Cortes appointed a committee of seven to prepare a draft constitutinn. The committee consisted of three members of the Suarez center-right party, a rightist member of the apposition, a Socialist, a Premier Suarez has complained Communist and a Catalan.

They met in closed session at any sign of political imagination Gredos, 90 miles west of Madrid, or intelligent reflection. under an agreement that they would reach their decision by consensus. Under this concept. all sides would give a little nn each issue until an acceptable compromise was reached.

Premier Suarez and most of his Cabinet bureaucrats were uncomfortable with public debate over major issues. They believe that the most sensiove and significant issues should be irnned out in private without unseemly argument.

The constitutional committee produced its first draft at the end of last year. In its most important provisions, the draft consotution provided for a parliamentary system uoder a constitutinnal monarchy and for a decentralization of the Spanish state into relatively autonomous reginns. The King would have certain powers to arbitrate and advise. He would naminate the premier subject to approval by the Cortes and could dissolve the Cortes if it repeatedly turned down his nominations. He also would have the right to call a meeting of the cabinet under his leadership.

In its provisions about decentralization, the draft consolution would allow autonomous territories, empowering them to raise revenues, organize a supplementary police farce, direct some aspects of education, provide local public works, regulate regional agriculture and commerce, and legislate other local matters. But those activides would be subject regulated by the Cortes in and elsewhere in Iran last week. Madrid.

Mr.Marais suggested that the drafters scrap their work and start anew.

Instead, the committee of seven took the first draft and the 1,133 amendments back to Gredos and tried again to reach a consensus. Once more, they worked in secret.

The silence was broken on March 6, when Gregorio Peces-Barba, the Socialist representaove, withdrew from the proceedings and accused the representatives of the Union of the Democrade Center, the government party, of reneging on some agreements.

Broke Consensus

According to Mr. Peces-Barba, the committee bad agreed that the parties would compromise on all issues so that the second draft could be presented to the Cortes without any amendments. But, the Socialist went on, the government, after a consensus bad been reached on most issues, changed its mind on three issues and pushed through amendments that broke the consensus.

These changes, according to Mr. Peces-Barba, would recognize the Roman Catholic Church as a special institution within Spain, would make it impossible for the government to regulate the curriculum in subsidized religious schools and would give industrialists and businessmen the constitutional right of dismissing employees at will and of organizing lockouts.

Despite all this, the Cortes is likely to approve a constitution generally like the first draft providing for a parliamentary system, a constitutional monarchy and regional autonomy. But the debate on the fme points will not be limited to closed sessions. A grand and public debate looms. C Los Angeles Times

Is all this the product of Islamic Marxism? Or is the Shah's authoritarian and paternalistic rule being challenged by other forces that have no legal outlet?

The questions are significant because this nation of 35 million, one of the world's principal exporters of oil and natural gas, is developing into an industrial and military power whose weight and ambitions are bound to be increasingly felt in the Middle East and elsewhere. Iran also is one of the world's many single-party states. Officials say that when Iranians vote in legislative elections oext year they will be able to choose among various candidates months the government has no-consultative assembly, and for half the seats in the senate. The press often publishes remarks by deputies and senators that are critical of the government, the bureaucracy and the economic planners. But there is never a word against the Shah and his dominance of national life.

Young, Western-educated Iranians who are moving into posioons of responsibility appear to have become impatient with the cult of imperial personality. There are also stirrings from small opposition groups that are oeither religious nor Marxist, but liberal or nationalistic. Last autumn, more than 50 wellknown Iranians addressed an open letter to the Shah, demanding the release of all poliocal prisoners and the end of the one-par-

Social discontent is one. Iran age, impressive by the standards of the developing world, is a statistical figment masking a wide gap between the wealthy elite and the poor in the villages and the urban slums. But opposition by the underprivileged seems still inchoate and largely unorganized. Little-Known U.S. Agency Aids Those Careless With Their Cash

WASHINGTON, April 4—In the early 1900s, the madam of a brothel in Charlottesville, Va., distrusting banks, buried her business revenues in containers under the house.

Three years ago workers tore down the old bordello and some city residents, suspecting that money was hidden there, uncovered bundreds of mason jars filled with moncy in an advanced state of disrepair. Time had so weathered the greenbacks that the untrained eye could oot tell whether the clients had paid with $2, $10 or $100 bills.

That is where a little-known federal agency came into play the Mutilated Currency Branch of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, established in 1862 to reimburse those unfortunates whose money had been defaced by time, floods, fires, termites and other causes. After examining the money found under the old bordello, the bureau's experts determined that $15,000 was redeemable, and that sum was sent to the happy finders.

In declare a damaged bill redecmable, the examiners must be able to identify at least half the note. Doris Hanford, assistant manager of the agency, said the largest elaim ever filed with the bureau involved an armored car company. One of its guards had dropped a cigarette into a vault as he was locking it and 35 bags of money in the vault were set on fire. The company said that $375,000 bad been destroyed by the smoldering fire. "We were able to identify and replace all but $20,000," Mrs. Hanford said.

In an opinion by Justice William Rehnquist, the justices rebuked the appeals court, calling its ruling "almost Kafkaesque" and "Monday morniog quarterbacking,"

"Nuclear energy may some day be a cheap, safe source of power or it may not," Mr. Rehnquist wrote. "But Congress has made a choice to at least try nuclear energy, establishing a reasonable review processs in which courts are to play only a limited role ...

Time may prove wrong the decision to develop ouclear energy, but it is Congress or the states within their appropriate agencies which must eventually make that judgment." The justices said that the courts should set aside regulatory agency decisions only for substantial reasons specified in laws passed by Coogress — and "not because the court is unhappy with the result reached."

The Supreme Court's decision comes at a time when critics of nuclear power, expressing concern about its safety and feasibility, are turning increasingly to the courts to block or delay nuclear projects. The justices ruling seemed likely to limit use of the courts as a means of opposing nuclear power.

Environmental organizations and other citizens groups had challenged the commission's licensing procedures in the two cases decided yesterday.

The citizens' groups contended that the Nuclear Regulatory Commission — known prior to 1974 as the Atomie Energy Commission - had failed to assess adequately the risks of nuclear waste disposal and reprocessing in authorizing three nuclear reactors in the two states. In the Michigan case, the groups also charged that the commission should have considered energy conservation alternatives in nu-

To Africa With Promises

President Carter's visit to Africa was no sacre courtesy call. His administration's posisons, shaped and articulated by advocates ke Andrew Young, have led African governments to expect much from the United tates. The President's own statements in Africa have added to those expectations and will increase the pressure to see them realvill increase the pressure to see them real-

Carter mostly told Africans what they

anted to hear:
(1) On Rhodesia: The United States will ontinue to oppose, as not likely to lead to enuine majority rule, the "internal settleneot" reached between Ian Smith and three lack leaders. (2) On Namibia: Washington ill oppose any settlement that gives the apearance of independence and yet retains a Cominant South African influence. (4) On outh Africa itself: The United States will ork for a peaceful transition to majority ule. (4) On development: It will do more to id poor African countries. (5) On foreign) itervention: The United States will aim to Firevent Africa from again becoming a scene f great-power rivalries.

These are all commendable goals. But exept for saying that he would urge Congress allocate a relatively modest $125 million b replenish the African Development Fund, arter gave little indication of how the adunistration intends to accomplish them.

Regarding Rhodesia, there is little more hat the administration can do beyond refus-'ig to recognize the "internal settlement" and hoping that the specter of civil war will nuse all the parties to cooperate in UN-suervised elections for a new post-independace government.

Regarding Namibia, the President noted iat unilateral South African moves to create client state would "precipitate a more seous difference" between Washington and retoria. But he did not say what action he light take.

And regarding South Africa's racist policies, he indicated that he was not now contemplating the kinds of economic pressure against Pretoria that Nigeria and other Africans call for. (Indeed, Zbigniew Brzezinski, the President's national security adviser, commented that curbs on U.S. trade or investmeot in South Africa are premature because significant political changes may soon occur there.)

Carter seems to be temporizing on South Africa. While the Pretoria regime has apparently shut the door to the participation of urban blacks in its national politics, the mood of militancy grows in capitals like Lagos. And Nigeria's economic power may soon be serving that mood if the expectations aroused by the United States turn out to be

On the question of East-West rivalry in Africa, Carter was right to deplore military interference by the Soviet Union and Cuba. He must have observed that his Nigerian hosts were much less worried than some of his own advisers or his political opponents at home, and, in any case, emphasized the right kind of response. Instead of arming its own African clients, he said, the United States would work to curb its arms sales and to induce others to show similar restraint.

All around him in Nigeria and in Liberia, Carter surely saw the fruits of peaceful foreign involvement; extensive investment and intensive collaboration among Africans and Western businessmen. Even avowedly Socialist governments like that of Mozambique know they have little to gain from involvements with Moscow and Havana that curtail their independence. The strong currents of African nationalism are the best assurance that the policy declarations by Carter are appropriate. With this trip, he has forthrightly identified U.S. interests with those currents. But the nation's African journey has only hegun.

Who knows where Martin Luther King jr. ould have stood now had he not been unned down in Memphis 10 years ago yesrday. His struggle for desegregation in the ities and towns of the Deep South was close won. The drive for economic justice hadist begun. The trek to Memphis to support a rike of garbage workers seeking higher ages was symbolic of a new situation.

In losing Martin Luther King, black Amerans lost a leader who better than anyone ave voice to their aspirations and added a lowerful vision of the fair society. All Amerians lost a moral force that compelled them nally to confront the evil of racism and the osts of inequality. But something more was lost with Martin Luther King. Even in the midst of rebellion, he had the American gift for searching out the "vital center," for building coalitions that stretched from the militant to the moderate and unified their objectives and tactics in a boldly nonviolent struggle. It was no easy task and on the day he was struck down, his own movement was visibly fragmenting.

Those who knew him, however, felt sure that he would find a way to shift the attack against segregation to the more difficult issues of economic integration without losing his hold on millions. His American dream survives. It is up to us to re-create his ennohling tactics.

International Opinion

Carter in Africa

President Carter's visit to Nigeria is the 1st by any U.S. president in office to black frica. The fact is symbolic of the titter lack f interest which all U.S. administrations, ntil very recently, have shown in the dark ontinent, even though much U.S. history is ound up with it through ethnic ties. Times ave changed. First the Nixon administraon, through Henry Kissinger, now the arter presidency, have woken up to the fact hat Africa is a theater of power Washington annot ignore. Better late than never, some night say: others would argue that a continatioo of benign neglect would be preferable o the wrong policies enthusiastically pplied. Mr. Carter and his principal officers nfortunately do appear to be making a rong-headed approach.

All the evidence is that they think the best ray to conoter Soviet and other Communist enetratioo into Africa is to compete for faor with those countries most likely to weliome such penetration, rather than by activey supporting those most likely to resist it. hus Nigeria, Tanzania, Zambia, Mozamique, even Angola, are in the U.S. sights as esirable objects of loving courtship. Zaire formerly a U.S. favorite), Kenya, Senegal, vory Coast, Malawi and others, who are disloctly opposed to Soviet and Cuban penetraion, are seen as undeserving of blandishnent. This policy can be seen at its most glaring - and potentially disastrous - in connection with the tussle for Rhodesia...Mr. Carter should pause to reconsider whether his earlier easy-going opinion that the West should avoid inordinate fears of the spread of Communism is still true, and in particular whether it is true of Africa today.

Begin: Prisoner of Past?

Menachem Begin, already the despair of Israel's friends abroad, has now become the target of a mounting protest movement within his own country. This is one peace organization that cannot be caricatured as Communist-inspired or woolly.

It is being mounted by army veterans, men who have fought and lost blood to defend their homeland against Arab invaders. What they are demanding is that Israel announce its readiness to make territorial compromise on the West Bank of the Jordan. What they are campaigning against is Mr. Begin's rigid Biblical insistence on Israel's right to colonize this strip of land, so central to any stable Middle East settlement...

The protesters see Begin as a prisoner of the past and are not afraid to say so. The rally they held over the weekend...is the only Israeli gesture (an unofficial ooe, at that) remotely comparable in scale to President Sadat's mission to Jerusalem.

-From the Daily Mail (Loodon).

It is true that Giscard d'Estaing's appeal to the voters to be "attentive to the reputation of France" was couched in terms that had old-fashioned Gaullist overtones - the danger that France would become a debtor nation and that Germany would gain in relative weight in the Eu-ropean Community. China's Long March To Attain EEC Goal

By Leopold Unger

BRUSSELS—China's long march to the Common Market finally reached its goal with the visit to Brussels by Peking's Foreign Trade Minister Li Chi-

This visit, which the New China News Agency qualified as a "major event in the relations between the two parties," inangurates the "Red Spring" of the European Economic Community. Opened by Monday's signature of a trade agreement with China, it will continue through the East-West contacts in Geneva next Tuesday and Wednesday during the annual session of the Economic Commission for Europe, and end next month with a new and end next month with a new meeting between a EEC delega-tioo and the Comecon Secretariat in Moscow. The agreement signed with China is the first trade accord between the EEC and Peking, an accord that was first initiated shortly after Jan. 1, 1975, when the EEC declared that the trade policy of its member-states would, henceforth, be the responsibility of the Community. Two months before that date, the EEC in-formed all third countries—in-cluding Communist countries—of its intentions by sending them a draft agreement to be negotiated with the Community.

Silent

But while the Soviet Union and its Eastern European allies re-mained silent on the question, the reaction of Peking was positive, and on Dec. 3, a Chinese delega-tion initialed a formal accord in

The most apparent significance of this agreement is its commercial objective: to increase trade between the two parties. Although the European Community is China's second most important trading partner-after Japan-the volume of European goods oo a market of 900 million consumers is virtually nonexistant. Chinese-West European trade is now only West European trade is now only at $2 billion a year—one half of 1 per cent of EEC foreign trade. And at a time when China is working out a vast program of modernization and economic expansion. Europe may well be asked to play a greater role.

Yet, there is another significance to Mr. Li's visit to Brussels and it is more than merely eco-

All West Europeaan visitors to Peking have been carefully informed of this Chinese stance. Last week, Chinese Foreign Minister Huang Hua reaffirmed his country's "firm support to the Western European union against the superpowers." The People's Daily recently played the same time over again a bit heavily by coming out vociferously in favor of Spain's immediate entry into of Spain's immediate entry into the Common Market and criticizing the Soviet Union's opposition to such a move as "interference in Europeao affairs."

Moscow is fully aware of Peking's every diplomatic move in Europe. According to the Soviet weekly. Nedelia, China seeks to use its relations with the EEC to use its relations with the EEC to turn these countries against the Soviet Union. "The aim of the oegotiations between China and the EEC are thus," according to the Soviet weekly, "to discredit the agreement reached at Helsinki, to aggravate the situation existing on the European continent and to reinforce the aggressive NATO bloc."

The Soviet concern over recent

The Soviet concern over recent Chinese overtures could only have been increased by the visit to Peking last month of Sen. Henry Jackson, D.-Wash., author of the amendment which blocked the granting by the United States of most-favored-nation nation status to the Soviet Union. Sen. Jackson, who was well received in Peking had planned a trip to Moscow, but that trip was called off by the Kremlin at the last moment.

Suspicion

However, this atmosphere of suspicion has not prevented Mos-cow from taking initiatives of its own. Following a recent exchange of letters, it appears now almost certain that Wilhelm Haferkamp, the EEC commissioner on foreign affairs, will enter into a new round of preparatory contacts with the Comecon in Moscow at the end of next month. According to Common Market sources, the decisive phase of those talks may well take place at a neutral site, Geneva, for example.

At the Geneva meeting next Tuesday, EEC officials will have ample opportunity to contact representatives of Eastern European

However, the climate for such talks is not at its best. The Soviet attitude at Belgrade, which forced the Western nations to accept a final communique that made no mention of human rights, has rendered it likely that Soviet proposals will be regarded cooly, particularly those concerning a broad European consultation on energy, transportation and the environ-

"The Helsinki agreement," a diplomat said, "is a whole, which cannot be chopped off by one

In any case, and whatever the moral climate, the EEC Commission has decided to reject any formula that would attempt to equate the European Commission, an autonomous political institution, and the General Secretariat of Comecon, a technical body. Therefore, all contacts, and all trade agreements will be the ex-clusive results of bilateral negotiations between the European Commission and each Eastern European country separately. In other words, the EEC does oot intend to reinforce the prestige nor the role of the Comecon General Secretariat on the international level.

And the knowledge of this policy could have served only to broaden the smile on Mr. Li's face Monday as he left Common Market headquarters in Brussels.

Mideast Analysis

Aside from the wisdom of the United States holding fast on its sale of F-15s to Saudi Arabia, it is surprising that Evans and Novak's column (IHT, March 13) should describe Anthony Cordes-man's Armed Forces Journal artisource of President Carter's information on the Near East.

Without attributing to Mr. Cordesman anything more sinis-ter than a possible assimilation of Pentagon irritation at Israel's requests for first-line equipment that compete with the Pentagon's stroy the armed forces that more range against them can best be examined via a few citations from

It takes chutzpah to say that it "was not U.S. interests which recently led President Carter to state that the United States will not use military aid to put pressure on the Begin government."

There is no question but that the United States must encourage both Israel and the Arahs to compromise, and continue to extend huge sums of money to both sides in the process. Pressuring Israel while the Soviet Union and the oil states build op the other side is not the answer. STEVEN KLINE.

Breton rage is itself at present a black tide—and one that could be harnessed. As Mostert has shown, no less is at stake, ultimately but already, given the current rate of pollution by tankers, than the life or death of all the oceans.

Toon Sees Negative Effect on Soviet Relations

Shcharansky Trial Worries U.S. Envoy

By Peter Osnos

WASHINGTON, April 4 (WP)—The U.S. ambassador in Moscow, Malcolm Toon, warned in a broadcast yesterday that a trial of jailed Soviet dissident Anatoli Shcharansky would have a "very negative effect" on Washington's already difficult relations with the Kremlin.

"I think this is a very serious question," Mr. Toon said in an interview taped in Moscow by the Voice of America, "and I think the Soviet side ought to look at it

Mr. Shcharansky, a 30-year-old computer specialist, sought unsuccessfully to emigrate to Israel and was arrested a year ago after the Soviet press accused him of spying for the United States. President Carter has flatly denied the allegations. A trial of Mr. Shcharansky, possibly on treason charges, could occur at any time, according to reports from Mos-

Mr. Toon, who taped the inter-view with VOA correspondent Mark Hopkins on Friday, also was critical of the Soviet stance in the strategic arms talks with the United States as well as the Kremlin position in the Middle East and the Horn of Africa.

Blunt Remarks

The ambassador's remarks were notable in several respects. Career diplomats such as Mr. Toon rarely speak so bluntly in public about the policies of gov-ernments to which they are accredited, particularly one as sensitive as the Soviet Union.

Moreover, Mr. Toon's comments on the Shcharansky case amount to a prediction that the United States will respond sharply in other areas of U.S.-Soviet relations should the trial go forth the sort of direct "linkage" be-tween issues that administration spokesmen had sought to avoid in the past.

"I think all of us that focus on think all of us that focus on the relationship between Moscow and Washington," Mr. Toon said, "feel strongly that a Shcharansky trial, and a brutal move against Shcharansky, will have a very negative effect on our relations and it will make it very difficult indeed for us to do the sorts of things which I think both of us feel are essential to peace and sta-

Malcolm Toon

On the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks, the ambassador was critical of the Kremlin for blaming the United States exclusively in the present stalemate.

"The Soviets," be said, "bear as much responsibility for the present situation as we do... For our part we continue to work and hope for a SALT treaty in the near future. But in all frankness, the process is not served by a campaign of threats and charges such as we see at the present time in the Soviet press."

He was referring primarily to a major article in the Communist party newspaper Pravda last week warning of serious deterioration in the Soviet-U.S. relations if the United States. if the United States does not accept a SALT accord.

Mr. Toon has been in Moscow since the end of 1976 but his appointment was delayed for several months because of Soviet reluctance to accept him. Mr. Toon had served in the Soviet Union before and had never made a secret of his disapproval of Kremlin governors expressing his anger "at the total exclusion of the Bee Gees and their original music for Saturday Night Fever from any and all music nominations."

The original sound track album of "Saturday Night Fever" has recently become the largest selling film sound track album in history with a sale to date of over 9 million records, but the music failed to be made even a preliminary selection by the Academy's music hranch. Last Wednesday, Panavision boycotted the Academy's presentation of technical awards. Panavision rejected a Class Two award for its Panaflex camera and insisted that the camera was worthy of a Class One award. Panavision president Robert Gottschalk said the main reason for the refusal was that only one cameraman was among the 36 members of the Academy's scientific and technical awards committee when the awards were Panahead and Panalite mechanisms.

The awards show itself was a return to the opulence and glamor of years past after the deliberately austere show produced last year hy William Friedkin, director of "The Exorcist."

It opened with a lavish production number starring Debhie Reynolds and 30 dancers. The number, "Look How Far We've Come," spotlighted 37 former Academy Award winners in act-ing, directing, writing, cinematograpby, music and costume design. For the 15th time, Bob Hope served as Master of Ceremonies. He was the sole emcee, as he has been in eight previous years. It was the first time since 1967 that the show has bad only one emcee.

"We felt that for Oscar's 50th birthday, Bob Hope should be host," said Howard Koch, president of the Academy.

Canada Acts To Bolster Its Dollar

Raises Bank Rate, Expands Credit Line

OTTAWA, April 4 (AP-DJ)-Canadian monetary authorities moved yesterday to bolster the sagging Canadian dollar.

The Bank of Canada increased its bank rate as of today to 81/2 from 8 percent, the level that has prevailed since March 9, when the rate was increased from 7½ percent. Today, the nation's leading commercial banks increased their prime lending rate to 94 from 84

The Finance Department announced separately that the amount the Canadian government may draw under its revolv-ing standby credit facility with Canadian banks is being in-creased to $2.5 billion (U.S.) from

The moves followed a day of renewed pressure on the dollar, which fell below the level of 88 U.S. cents for the first time in 45 years, closing in Toronto at 87.96 U.S. cents, down from 88.18 cents

Friday.
[But after opening this morning at 88.30 cents, the Canadian unit fell back to 87.84 cents in late afternoon trading. Dealers said the bank-rate hike was insufficient to sustain a higher dollar rate. They said concern about inflation and the political situation in Quebec overshadow the benefits of the bank-rate increase, Reuters

Bank of Canada governor Ger-ald Bouey said the decision to raise the bank rate was taken "in light of the current downward pressure on the foreign exchange value of the Canadian dollar in the present unsettled state of international currency markets."

The central bank has intervened heavily in the foreign-exficial reserves to buy Canadian dollars on the foreign-exchange market. But for a $750-million drawing on its U.S. dollar credit line with Canadian banks, the official reserves would have fallen a further $478.7 million list month. As a result of the drawing, the reserves rose $271.3 million to $3.97 billion on March 31 from $3.7 billion at Feb. 28.

Estel Posts Wider Loss In Quarter

NIJMEGEN, The Netherlands, April 4 (Reuters)—Estel NV Hoesch Hoogovens lost 153.5 million guilders (about $71.4 million) in the fourth quarter of 1977, against net earnings of 25.2 million guilders a year earlier and a net loss of 93.1 million guilders in the third quarter, the company re-

The loss for 1977 came to 416.9 million guilders compared with a loss of 68.9 million the previous

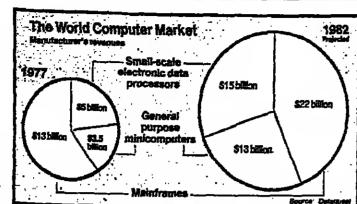

Fourth quarter sales rose to 2.59 billion guilders from 2.41 billion in 1976. Sales in the year also rose to 10.14 billion guilders from 9.31 billion.

Estel said its Dutch Hoogovens division lost 87.4 million guilders in the last quarter of 1977, compared with a profit of 16.1 million a year earlier.

This loss is not entirely due to the continued decline in prices for rolled steel but also to the lower usage of production capacity prompted by a dearth of new orders," the company said. Production in the rolled steel division in the period was down 12 percent from the previous quarter at 1.98 million tons.

The company added that trad-ing results in the first quarter of this year are likely to remain New York Stock Exchange.

IBM Minicomputers Get Share of Expanding Mart

NEW YORK, April 4 (NYT)-International Business Machines has established a beachhead in the swiftly growing market for minicom-

Sales of these machines-introduced in 1965 to perform narrow tasks such as controlling machines in factories but which are now pushing their way into wider applications in husiness offices—have been increasing worldwide at better than 35 percent a year. This compares with a 15-percent growth rate for the large, or mainframe computers on which IBM has concentrated in the past.

IBM, which entered the minicomputer market in November 1976 with the first shipment of its Series-1 model, now has hundreds installed and thousands more on order.

So far, according to industry observers, IBM's still-small volume of sales of the Series-1, estimated at $50 million for 1977, has not hurt the leading manufacturers. These include Digital Equipment, with S1.2 billion in minicomputer revenues last year; Hewlett-Packard, nearly $400 million, and Data General, nearly $300 million.

Instead, IBM is said to be expanding the overall market for mini-computers. Input, a California-based planning concern, forecast last autumn that IBM would ship $1.2 billion of Series-1 equipment as early as 1981. This would represent a 16-percent share of an estimated world total of $7.4 billion, but IBM's equipment would have expanded the total market by 8 percent.

And in a survey in December and January of about 12,000 present or potential minicomputer customers, the trade magazine, Mini-Micro Systems, found plans to purchase a total of 29,700 minicomputers during 1978, of which 4 percent were IBM machines.

Robert Umbreit, a director at IBM's General Systems division, said that "so far we've felt rather a synergistic effect" from Series-1, Many of the machines, he said, are being installed in networks linked to such mainframe compoters as the IBM System-370 or its newly introduced mainframe processors, called 3031, the 3032 and the 3033.

Rolls-Royce to Be Supplier of Engines

LONDON, April 4 (AP-DJ)— Rolls-Royce Ltd. said today that it has concluded an agreement with Pan American World Airways which could be worth more than £250 million to the U.K.

Pan American is to buy 12 long-range Lockheed TriStar L-1011-500 jetliners to be equiped with the Rolls-Royce RB-211 engines. Pan Am also has taken options to buy a further 14 long-range TriStars, Rolls-Royce said.

Rolls-Royce said the value of its engines for the 12 aircraft ordered is nearly £65 million and wih spares will exceed £114 mil-lion. The additional engines for the 14 aircraft on option plus spare parts are expected to bring Rolls-Royce a further £145 mil-lion, the company said.

The first aircraft is scheduled for delivery early in 1980, Rolls-Royce chairman Sir Kenneth Keith said "this is a tremendous order for Rolls-Royce and will underpin both us and our Lockheed parmers."

[In Los Angeles, Lockheed chairman Roy Anderson said the Pan Am purchase would be worth between $500 million and $520 million to Lockheed. He said the order will not immediately lift the L-1011 orogram to proitability because delivery of the planes is not set to start until 1980, Renters

Airco-BOC Vie Over Marietta Bid

A series of maneuvers in and out of the boardroom have entangled the battle over the future control of Airco. Officers of BOC Internacional Ltd. announced at the opening of an Airco board meeting that BOC, as majority owner of Airco, had changed the company's bylaws to require a unanimous vote of directors to approve a merger proposal. Nevertheless, Airco directors approved by a vote of 10-3 a conditional $50-per-share merger proposal from Martin Marietta and launched efforts to call a special stockholders' meeting in early May to vote on the merger—a move that BOC called invalid. Meanwhile, a New Jersey state securities official issued an order that would prevent BOC from voting Airco shares that it acquired after Jan. 4 which gave BOC majority ownership. The manuevers appeared likely to move the focus of the battle to a federal court where Airco and BOC have filed litigation against

Japan Auto Sales Set a Record

Sales of new motor vehicles in Japan set a record in March, and the uptrend is continuing, industry sources in Tokyo report. New vehicle registration, excluding minicars, totaled a record 453,717 units, up 9.5 percent from the year-earlier month and up 66.3 percent from February. One analyst suggests that the surge in auto sales might be the long-awaited sign of a general recovery in overall con-sumer spending. The previous record was set to March 1973 at 432,207 units. The auto industry has shifted its emphasis to domestic sales as the export environment becomes increasingly hostile and price competitive because of the sharp appreciation of the yen.

Miller Lifts '78 Forecast On Inflation

'Urgent Progress' Needed to Cut Rate

WASHINGTON, April 4 (UPI)—Inflation will range be tween 6.5 and 7 percent that year-higher than previous administration projections—and un-employment could fall to 5.75 percent by year's end, Federal Re-serve chairman William Miller

"We ungently need to make progress in lowering the rate of inflation, as well as to achieve further reductions in the unemploy-ment rate," he said in a letter to Rep. Henry Reuss, D-Wis., chair-man of the House Banking Com-

Sources said Mr Carter probably will announce he latest anti-inflation initiatives or April 13. The program may in clude a reduction in pay increase: for federal employees as well as other measures

On March 9, the day after Mr Miller was sworn in to replace Ar thur Burns as Fed chairman, Rep Reuss asked him to supply his economic projections for 1978. It his reply today, Mr. Miller said that "because of continuing strong cost pressures" he would esumate an inflation rate of between 6.5 and 7 percent between the fourth quarter of last year and this year's final quarter.

In its budget assumptions made io late January, the administra-tion predicted a 6.3-percent inflation fate,

Mr. Miller also said the joblese rate should improve to between 5.75 and 6 percent by the fourth guarter, compared to a previous forecast of 6.2 percent and the February rate of 6.1 percent.

For the economy as a whole.

Mr. Miller predicted a 4-to-4.75

CANON INC.

Advice has been received from Tokyo that the Board of Directors have declared a payment of dividend of Yen 3.75 per share for six months period ended 31st December, 1977.

Holders of European depositary receipts to hearer (share edrs) wishing to claim this dividend in respect of the shares represented by their share edrs should present coupon N° 30 at the office of Hill Samuel and Co. Limited, 45 Beech Street, London EC2P 2LX, where listing forms are available. Coupons must be presented by an authorized depositary and must be left four

Payment will be made in sterling at the rate of exchange ruling on the day of presentation, except in the case of non-residents of the scheduled territories who, to obtain payment in yen must follow the procedure laid down in the Japanese withholding tax at the rate of 20% will be deducted from the proceeds of the dividend, except in the case of holders resident in the following countries:

AUSTRALIA BELGIUM CANADA FEDERAL REPUBLIC OF GERMANY FRANCE (THE NETHERLANDS)

NEW ZEALAND PAKISTAN (excluding Bangladesh) SINGAPORE SWEDEN SWITZERLAND UNITED ARAB REPUBLIC UNITED KINGDOM OF AMERICA

To obtain payment under deduction of withholding tax at the reduced rate of 15%, residents of the above countries must furnish a declaration of residence as required by the Japanese Ministry of Finance. The declaration must be given by an authorized depositary, and in respect of holders resident in the United Kingdom is incorporated in the listing form.

For residents of all other countries a separate declaration must be furnished giving the name and address of the beneficial owner, the number and definitive numbers of edrs held, and attesting that he is entitled to the 5% tax relief persuant to the tax convention between Japan and the country concerned.

Share edr holders resident in the REPUBLIC OF KOREA will receive payment under deduction of withholding tax at the reduced rate of 12% and residents of Zambia without any deduction subject to the provision of a declaration as set out Attention is drawn to the fact that the above mentioned concessions relating to Japanese withholding tex apply only to coupons presented for payment within S MONTHS OF THE DUE DATE. Thereafter tax will be deducted at the full rate of 20% and it will be the responsibility of the owner to claim from the Japanese tax authorities any refund to which he is entitled. United Kingdom income tax at the appropriate rate will be deducted from the proceeds unless the coupons are accompanied by a United Kingdom affidavit of

The approval by the EEC's foreign ministers came after Britain and France dropped their objections to the accord. The spokesman said that under the arrangement, Japanese steel products can be offered at prices not more than 6 percent below those applying to EEC producers under the community's price system for steel products. Minimum prices for specialty steels should not be more than 4 percent below those applied in the EEC. In addition, the Japanese steel producers pledge to hold their 1978 exports to the community at a level about 10 percent below the 1.5 million tons shipped in 1976. This, the spokesman said, would limit Japanese steel exports to the EEC to roughly the level in 1977. Britain originally refused to accept the arrangement demanding a minimum price of 5 percent below that in the EEC for ordinary Japanese steel and 3 percent for specialty steel. France had objected to the waiving of certain anti-dumping duties imposed on Japanese steel while an arrangement with Japan was still under negotiation. Such antidumping duties were introduced in 1978 but some Japanese shipments already enroute to the community had been included. Japan had refused to accept an overall arrangement for 1978 unless the duties on those shipments were lifted.

A TRANSIT TO NARCISSUS A Facsimile of the Original Typescript By Norman Mailer. With an introduction by the author. Howard Fertig. Approximately 800 pp. $100.

Reviewed by Anatole Broyard

WHILE oo one would deny Norman Mailer's narcis-sism, I can think of additional reasons why be might have wished to publish a novel he wrote when he was 20 years old and that was rejected by 20 pub-lishers at the time. If Mailer is generally regarded as one of our most important living writers, then it should be worthwhile to see how he began. "A Transit to Narcissus," a fascimile printing of the original typescript, including Mailer's own handwritten revisions, serves as an anthropologi-cal picture of a rather special American primitive.

Mailer is so sophisticated now that it is less easy to see into him. I would not go so far as to say that he sublimates, simply that his ideas and impulses are given more complex expression in his later novels. In A Transit to Narcissus, he is more naively fond of his characters. They are not yet mere actors for his ideas. or at least not to the degree they were later on. I think that, as Mailer developed, he lost interest in individual characters — with the exception of his own - and became fascinated by power.

"The Armies of the Night," probably the best book he has ever written, is about the character of Mailer's impatience with people occasionally makes his handling of them so abrupt as to seem spectacular. He is able to hear them only when they are at the extreme edge of their temper or their temperament, planning to "combat," one of his favorite words, or murder one another. (This description includes sex.) In my opinion, that impatience prevented Mailer from becoming a great novelist. To do that, you have to love or hate people. At the very least, you must experience them, let them have their im-pact on you, while Mailer is more concerned with his impact on them and us.

Perhaps all novelists are narcis-sists, but the great novelists are those who are reconciled to the fact that they must work with and through others, that people are the best material for the dramatization of ideas. Believing that most people are beneath him — as indeed they are, in a sense —
Mailer tends to abstract them into schemes for power. Mailer's introduction to "A Transit to Narcissus" is a good review of the book. He concedes the "lugubrious" weight of the style. the humorlessness, the "catatonic" slowness of the movement, the "operatie" plot, the "themes 20 times his own size." He is both times his own size." He is both entertaining and instructive about an ambitious young writer's affec-tations, and absolutely right when he says: "There may be too much of a tendency among young intel-lectuals to think that if one can develop a consciousness, if one is able to brood sensitivity and incisively on one's own life, or on the life of others for that matter, one will be able to write when the time comes."

Referring to his own history, Mailer goes on to say: "That assumption, however, may not recognize sufficiently that the ability to put words on a page also comes through years of expe-rience, and can become a skill nearly separate from consciousness, and bear more resemblance to the sophisticated instinct of fingers that have heen playing scales for a decade." It seems to me that, for all the truth in this last part. Mailer betrays himself bere, for his novels would be better for more sensitive and incisive hrooding and less oo conscious instinct and automatic fingering of his fellow creatures.

I don't have room here to summarize the plot of "A Transit to Narcissus," so let us just say that it is about a young man who works in a mental hospital, has: love affair with a nurse there and becomes increasingly hrutalized by his contact with the patients In the end, he decides, in thrall to Mailer's unique theory of love, to kill the nurse in order "to give himself life."

It is interesting to note that Mailer's first novel is placed in a mental hospital, for there is some-thing of the mental hospital in most of his subsequent novels, And while Mailer correctly says that the war "squeezed more than a few ponderosities" out of his style, he did retain some of the affectations one finds in this first book, such as his habit of using certain words out of place so that they will squirm and give uneasy life to a line, in "A Transit to Narcissus," the patients in the bosptial are "profane," and a morning is "ingenuous and morning is candid."

There are gangsters and re-formers in the book, and I lound Mailer weakest in dealing with the large ideas he infers from them. However, his portrait of the love affair, or power struggle, between the young hero and the nurse is very shrewdly observed, and I regretted as I read it that Mailer had moved away from this kind of natural history. In doing so, he renounced emotional impact and condemned his characters to be no more than interesting at best.

Saul Bellow said that the sensibilities of too many young American writers seem to be wearing sneakers. The image makes me think of Mailer's sensibility in boxing gloves, trying to slug its way to the truth. And while he does arrive at a partial truth, it is the thought that boxers express when they hug and kiss in the ring after one has just beaten the

Cannibal Relics Are on Loan to London Group

LONDON, April 4 (AP)-Queen Elizabeth has lent to a London museum two yellowing skulls, relics of cannibal and head-hunting days, that were presented to her by the people of Papua New Guinea during her Silver Jubilee tour of Australasia last year. Mrs. Borota Starzecka, an assistant keeper at the Museum of Mankind, said that the skulls and the ariba, or carved board, or which they are displayed were kept in the homes of head-hunters who lived on the Papuan island of Goaribari.

The club queen was led, and was overtaken by East with the king. South ducked, but took his ace when East returned the suit. South saw that he might be able to survive if both the high spade honors were oo his right. It was clear that they were not both on the left, for West would presumably have choseo a spade lead in that situation.

Six rounds of hearts were led, followed by the spade queen. East was now belpless. If he won, he would have to permit dummy to gain the lead, allowing club discards on the diamond winners. And ducking would not help either, because another spade lead would affect the same throw-

Using this guideline, the road leads naturally to Jack Nick-laus, Jones's favorite to win for a sixth time the Masters tournament, which begins play on Thursday. Nicklaus is consistently the best driver in golf and indisputably the game's most reliable putter.

"The only thing that saddens me was when you said a United official who has since left insulted Cunningham. I would like to apologize to the player as I never considered the United official prejudiced.

The fact that some clubs don't have colored players and have no intention of signing any is also disappointing. Those clubs may in time fight promotion and relegation and have to change their attitude, but I would again refute your statement that the word 'nigger' was chanted at Laurie Cunninghan. - Yours

That letter was received in the same post as another forwarded by this newspaper informing me that: "You are wrong when you say Argentine soccer is violent and if ever you are in Buenos Aires you had better watch out or you will get beaten up for saying things like that."

Yesterday it RENTHOUSE was stated that Millwall could after all play a vital home game in London even though it was scheduled during the two weeks. Why? Apparently no neutral club can be persuaded to allow Millwall to play at its ground, and an F.A. spokesman said it could be played on May 2 at Millwall without hreaking the decision: "Millwall's ground was closed, but nothing was said about them having to play their

"It was a professional foul," shrugged Thompson, "But the referee was a bloody joke. I hit the man at least a foot outside the NBA Playoff Outlook area. Lines are rules."

U.K. Debates the Princess and Playboy

By R.W. Apple Jr.

ONDON (NYT)—Princess Margaret's conduct has come under sharp attack from newspapers, left-wing members of Parliament and an Anglican bishop. In the noisiest controversy involving the royal family in many years, the Queen's 47-year-old sister is being criocized for taking an extended Caribbean holiday with her 30-year-old friend, Roddy Llewellyn, while allegedly neglecting the cere#:onial duties for which she is paid more than $100,000 a year by Parliament.

It is considered significant here, as a measure of the continuing change io atotudes toward the mooarchy, that the discussion of Princess Margaret's problems has reached well beyond the popular press and the anti-royalists in the House of Commons, although leaders of the government have yet to become involved.

This weekend, the Rt. Rev. Graham Leooard, bishop of Truro and chairman of the Church of England's Board for Social Responsibility, said in an interview that the princess's pre-Easter trip to the island of Musoque was "very foolish." Her behavior, he said, "is asking people to draw cooclusions, whether right or Bishop Leonard suggested that Princess Margaret might be well advised to withdraw from public life, like her uncle, Edward VIII, who abdicated in 1936 to marry Wallis Warfield Simpson.

"This I would have thought was a possihle way of enabling her to sort out her private affairs," the bishop said. "I would have thought the thing that had to be resolved oow was in fact how far she can go on being a public person. If you accept the public life, you must accept a severe restriction on your personal cooduct."

But later the hishop appealed for "com-passion and understanding" for her per-sooal problems. Princess Margaret's friends and supporters have rallied around her. The bishop of Southwark, Mervyn Stockwood, issued a statement praising "the good she has dooe in Great Britain and elsewhere." Both conservative oewspapers and members of Parliameot have deplored the public controversy.

But eveo some of those who have defended the princess have expressed regret at her cooduct. For example, Peregrine Worsthorne, the columnist of the Sunday Telegraph, asked readers to desist from gossip. But in doing so, he spoke of Margaret's "sad lack of private decorum in her choice of companion" and asserted that her private life was "very far from edifying."

In part, the uproar stems from the fact that Liewellyn is 17 years younger than the princess and from his style of life. The soo of Col. Sir Harry Llewellyn, who won an equestrian gold medal in the 1952 Olympics, Llewellyn has had no real career and is often described as a playboy. He was worked occasionally as a landscape gardener and is oow trying to launch a career as a pop singer.

Another element in the criticism is Princess Margaret's marital status. When she and her husband, Lord Snowdon, separated on March 19, 1976, it was authoritatively reported that they would seek a divorce after two years had elapsed. But her spokesman said recently that there were no divorce plans, even though a comparatively quiet decree by mutual consent would oow be possible.

Most of the criocs, however, have contended simply that the princess, who is fifth in the line of succession to the throoe, is oot doing her joh. According to one tabulation, her appearances at public ceremonies declined from an average of 150 a year before her separation to 97 in 1976 and to 86 last year.

Uotil the Easter weekend, Princess Margaret had made only eight appearances this year. Her household made it known last week that her schedule would be heavy in the coming mooths, but this weekend she was felled by influenza. Dennis Canavan, a left-wing Scottish member of Parliament, called the princess a parasite"—a comment he was forced to withdraw because of the parliamentary rule against discussion of members of the royal family. But he is attempting to find a way to force a vote oo the new civil list, which grants allowances to the royal family, after it is disclosed on Friday. It is expected to grant the princess an increase of about $10,000 a year, but Canavan wants to remove her name from the list altogeth-

He has oo real prospect of success, hut he has interested a dozen colleagues in the Sidney Bidwell, another Labor MP, described the princess as "an embarrassment to the whole nation." Richard Kelley, also a Labor memher, expressed concern that "she uses substantial public funds for her gyrations around the world." Doug Hoyle said that Buckingham Palace should be asked to pledge that Princess Margaret's engagements would increase.

There has been no comment from the palace. But Queen Elizabeth is reported to be intensely distressed by the whole matter, especially Llewellyn's willingness to comment publicly on it.

"I shall go oo seeiog Princess Margaret when and where I want," he said on his return from Mustique. "Let them all criticize. I doo't mind, I doo't care what they

PEOPLE: Wayne is Surgery Wayne Is 'Satisfactory'

A spokesman for the surgeons who performed the operation said that "his condition is satisfacto-ry." The 70-year-old actor's surgery was for replacement of a mitral valve, which had erupted, with similar tissue from a pig. The mitral valve is between the left arrium and right ventricle of the heart. The spokesman said: "The operatioo came after Wayne's owo physicians in Newport Beach, Calif., coocluded he could be helped by replacement of the valve. There was full agreement among the Massachusetts General cardiology team that mitral valve surgery should be carried out." Wayne entered the hospital o week ago. Two of his sons had denied for several days that he faced heart surgery.

Finding the jury proceedings just too boring to suit him, Aubrey Nolte, who lives in the De-troit suburh of Allen Park, decided not to show up to deliberate further in a federal court trial of a man charged with illegal drug possession. "I just didn't feel like going in." said Nolte. "The trial was very interesting up to a point, but it was getting to be quite tir-ing for a full day." He and his fellow jurors had deliberated for three days before Nolte decided not to show up for another day of the same. When told that his abseoce had left the judge with no choice hut to declare a mistrial, Nolte said, "That's too had." He said that he does oot intend to return to the court, even though his jury duty does oot end until April 14. He faces o possible contempt of court citation.

Her usual frank and peppery self. Margaret Costanza, a White House adviser known for her differeoces with President Carter on the abortion issue, brought up the subject again in Denver. While campaigoiog for Reps. Pat Schroeder and Timothy Wirth. Miss Costanza said sardonically, You do have a right to an abortion, hut you have to report the pregnancy within 48 hours, then be examined by two doctors, two senators and the speaker of the House. Another one-licer to her speech concerned Anita Bryant and Phyllis Schlafty, two conservatives whose viewpoints are in-compatible with those of Miss Costanza. "I'd like to take the two of them and make bookends," she > Anita Bryant expects to be assassinated by homosexuals, acsassinated by homosexuals, according to a writer who interviewed her for Playboy magazine. Author Ken Kelley said to observations accompanying the interview that he believes Miss Bryant's fear is realistic. Miss Bryant made no statement in the ioterview concerning a possible assassination attempt, but Kelley, 26, said that "We talked about it" a lot, especially after she got a pie in the face in Des Moines. She said, 'At least it was better than a grenade.' "I asked her if she expected a greoade. She said she must expect anything at any time," he said. Io the ioterview, Miss Bryant said that homosexual behavior should be prosecuted as a felony. Io some places it is not a crime ood in others it is a mis-demeanor. "Any time you water down the law, it just makes it easier for immorality to become tolerated," she said. Kelley asked her if she believes 20 years in jail would rehabilitate homosexuals. "Why make it easy for them? I think it only helps to coodone it and to make it easier for kids who wouldn't be so concerned if it were just a misdemeanor, whereas a felony might make them think twice, especially the younger ones," she said.

Lena Horne says it's "a matter of geneology" that at age 60 she has been named to a list of America's 10 most beautiful women 'My mother was a great beauty,' the actress-singer said. "My father was, to me, one of the most beautiful men I've ever seen." "My advice is to find some time to be alone or with the people you feel closest to," she said, "Find some time to just be quiet, and have two good friends you can trust. Then you can be beautiful and stay beautiful." Miss Horne was in San Diego starring io the musical "Pal Joey."
